Marion's Menace.

BY C. H. WHITEHOUSE.

Good roads and not more railroads, is what this district most needs.

A railroad is certainly a necessary adjunct to any mining district, and Marion is not without its railroad.

Good roads—pikes—is the next necessary means for promoting the advancement of a district, and Marion district is without a single pike.

Two railroads are better than only one, just the same as one pike shows the great advantage of more pikes, and a railroad through the mining district is, under present conditions, an urgent necessity, but a pike road would prove a greater benefit and profit to the people.

But the proposition to build a railroad is a subject which should be carefully weighed pro and con by the people of Marion, particularly the merchants, property owners and all who expect to be financially affected by the building of an additional railroad for the benefit of the district.

The most vital point for consideration by Marion people, interested solely in its advancement, in connection with the building of a railroad, tapping directly or indirectly the greatest possible portion of the Mineral Belt at present being developed, is the possibility of a new town springing up in the center of the mineral district to supply its many and varied needs, as has frequently happened in other districts.

In this possibility, moreover in this probability rests the chances for and against Marion's advancement in proportion to the development of the mineral fields in Crittenden county; for, if isolated from the mining district by the building of a new railroad, all of the benefits at present being derived therefrom, will be cut off, resulting in the great impairment of Marion's financial strength and growth, and it is asserted that its gain in the past five years has been two-fold in population with the consequent alarm to some of the citizens of Marion, and has pointed out the natural adaptability of the roads of this county for conversion into "pike" roadbeds at a very nominal cost; he also suggests that a pike from Marion to the river through the Mineral Belt is in his opinion Marion's most urgent need at the present time, so as to afford competition with the railroad.

The advantages at present rest with Marion, by reason of its being the seat of government for the county, but this thread is too fragile to hold trade very long in the face of more active competition. Again, great loss will result from standing still and blocking the progress of a community, where on the other hand great gain may be achieved by keeping at the head of the procession.

Once the citizens of Marion awaken fully to the situation—the serious problem which now confronts them with scarcely a visible sign its import—a Good Roads Convention can quickly define the issue and decide as to the means for a flanking movement in favor of Marion.

The greatest good to the greatest

Can you people of Marion see the point or will it require further elucidation by an object lesson cutting off your opportunity for growth along with the mineral interests?

Give this problem your very serious thought and consideration this coming winter when your roads become almost, if not quite impassable.

Keep up present roadwork in the meantime until the problem shall have been satisfactorily solved.

In the building of another railroad lies Marion's menace, and in the building of pikes her salvation. Build one pike "on suspicion," others will follow.

OUR PEOPLE

Express Their Opinions on Results of Tuesday's Election.

It was the rolling wave of Roosevelt's popularity with the people rather than the efforts of Republican leaders. It was their wisdom, however, that let the wave roll unobstructed.—W. B. Yandell.

The results of this election will be splitting and demoralizing to the Democratic party.—Rev. E. B. Blackburn.

The overwhelming victory was due largely to the prosperous condition of the country; the people were afraid to make a change.—A. C. Moore.

The Republicans could not have much cause to feel better if they carried the entire South. I expected Crittenden to give J. C. Speight only 150 majority over Hon. H. M. James.—Wm. T. Crawford.

I am not surprised at the result. I predicted that whether Roosevelt or Parker should be elected the majority would be an overwhelming one.—G. R. Crawford, Tolu.

Bryan is evidently satisfied with the returns and doubtless thinks stronger than ever that he presented in his races better principles to the people than Parker. The Democratic party will have to reorganize.—Ex Senator Wm. J. Deboe.

I expected a close election. It was a great victory for Roosevelt.—Judge J. G. Rochester.

It was a clean sweep, and then some more. The silent vote—Laboring men and Independents were all for Roosevelt.—T. H. Cochran.

Just as I predicted when my grand baby was born a few days before election.—County Clerk C. E. Welton.

The people got their choice. Long live the people.—Chas. Evans.

When I voted ballot No. 13 in my precinct and heard that it was snowing in New York, I felt that something would happen.—A. J. Pickens.

I am not surprised. I think that everybody is satisfied.—H. Woods.

I am not surprised at Roosevelt's election, but I am surprised at the majority he has received.—T. J. Yandell.

It was no surprise to me.—County Judge Aaron Towery.

The American people have a man who knows no chess and does his duty as he sees it. The country has placed an O. K. on the Republican account of stewardship.—Jas. W. Lamb.

Say, can you tell me whether there will be an election anywhere today? I voted in one yesterday but I can't tell it. I would like to have another chance.—M. Schwab.

I am surprised, of course, but I believe a motion to make it unanimous would now be in order.—Johnson Crider.

Will be ready to start big ad in Roanoke at once.—R. F. Haynes, Druggist.

It must be borne in mind that this new railroad, when built, will tap the mining belt in such manner as to obtain the greatest possible tonnage therefrom and thereto, and according to the estimates of the benefits accruing to the company building the railroad, without necessarily taking Marion into consideration.

When this new railroad shall have been completed, the people of this district will probably find that they are almost, if not quite, as much in need of good roads as at present, and no railroad is more prone to call attention to such necessity or to advocate the "Good Roads Educational Movement" than the Illinois Central, which is Crittenden county's sole railroad dependency at present.

Chances for greater gain than

The remedy would not necessarily be to fly in the face of circumstances or fate in what would eventually prove a futile attempt to prevent the building of another railroad, but to begin early, at once, a "Good Roads Educational Movement." Furthermore, do not allow the effort to begin and end in the educational feature alone, but see to it that this movement shall accumulate sufficient strength and force to cross-cut the county with pikes before the completion of another railroad.

Prof. J. E. Wright, who is at present with the State Geological Survey corps, has sounded the alarm in this district can be best conserved by pike building, not railroad building, and it is certainly a false idea of economy to defer their building because of the proposed railroad in the interest of the mining section.

Any one who will obtain sufficient data to show approximately the loss, the absolute waste imposed by the present condition of county roads, particularly in winter time, will readily see that the saving which would be effected by having good roads would quickly pay for their building.

Furthermore, this net saving occasioned by pike building would always accrue to the community, instead of being an added asset of the railroad and a constant source of profit to them.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

What Our Exchanges Have to Say About the Result of the Election.

Bill Taylor, it seems, will not have to move out of Indiana.—Kentuckian.

Excuse us, but our Democratic rooster is not feeling very well this morning. He got something in the neck last Tuesday that is causing him to feel a little droopy.—Glen's Graphic.

Texas and Hopkins county are still Democratic.—Glen's Graphic.

Russia and Japan may now resume operations. We are ready to give them our closest attention.—Falmouth Sun.

In several precincts in this county gross fraud was perpetrated, and it was more noticeable in the four town precincts. Republicans who were clearly entitled to a vote were denied that privilege, while Democrats who were not entitled to vote were allowed to vote.—Glasgow Republican.

Maybe, after all, Parker was the big stick.—Falmouth News-Democrat.

We will keep our roosters in the coop. They are too fine to spander on Republicans.—Todd County Progress.

It was also a mistake for the Democratic party to apparently condemn the navy and army. A generous people will always rally to the support of the soldiers fighting in the Philippines and is apt to condemn the party or man who apparently is in sympathy with them against whom they fight.—Lexington Herald.

There was absolutely no reason to excuse for Judge Parker's haste to leave in congratulating Roosevelt, and the President's cold acknowledgment was a fitting rebuke. The "Sage of Esopus" must be a very forgiving man to want to show courtesy to a man who had called him a liar in seven different ways.—Lexington Democrat.

It is all over. It is so one-sided, so lopsided, so nearly all one way that the victorious party does not even feel like shouting about it. The victory was so complete and so overwhelming that the Republicans hardly seem to realize the fact that there was a fight.—Glen's Graphic.

The Democratic press proved conclusively to its own satisfaction that Mr. Roosevelt is a war lord, a dictator, a negro lover, an imperialist, a murderer, a broncho buster, a revolutionist, a fire-eater, a thief, a scoundrel, a blackmailer, an unsafe ruler and a general terror. But the American people overwhelmingly declared they preferred him to Mr. Parker.—Hawesville Plain Dealer.

Even in the East Judge Parker failed to show as much strength in places as Mr. Bryan carried when he was at the head of the Democratic ticket. This is a surprise to people, but it is a fact, nevertheless.—Hopkinsville Independent.

"A Landlide Gone Wrong," says the Courier-Journal. "Gone Right," say the American voters. Over one million majority. And the "Big Stick"? Do you know what the Big Stick is? It is the flagstaff from which Old Glory flies and President Roosevelt is holding it aloft, higher, higher, even to the stars.—Sun Sentinel.

Now for our county politics, candidates, step to the front and let your wishes be known.—Todd County Progress.

The Democratic party thinks something of the "nigger"—enough to make an issue out of him.—Grayson Tribune.

Those Democrats who are finding consolation in the fact that old Kentucky has done right should bear in mind that they owe a debt of gratitude to S. W. Hager, chairman of the campaign committee and the able secretary, Mr. Tracy Haly, for had it not been for the excellent services rendered by these gentlemen, the result would have been otherwise.—New Haven Echo.

We hardly thought they would hit us so hard.—Uniontown Telegram.

There we have them, the three twin relics of defeat—free silver, tariff tinkering and imperialism. Bury them all in one grave, swear you never owned them as your own and start in for a fight that can be fought, that will be fought, and that in the end will win.—Owensboro Inquirer.

The dispatches tell us that Judge Parker "arose at his usual hour Wednesday morning, went out to see that the plowing on his farm was being properly done and then took a horseback ride." That must have seemed very tame to the Judge after his swift toboggan dash of Tuesday.—Harrodsburg Democrat.

PARKER'S PLANS

Defeated Candidate to Practice Law in New York.

A report comes from Kingston, N. Y., that Judge Parker will lose nothing in a pecuniary sense because of his retirement from the Court of Appeals bench to accept the Democratic nomination for the presidency. It is said that on or about January 1st he will take up his winter residence in New York and become the banking member of the law firm of Sheehan & Collin, which will be reorganized, all of its present members remaining, under the name of Parker, Sheehan & Collin. The firm is composed of William F. Sheehan, Charles A. Collin and three others.

Mr. Sheehan went to New York from Buffalo ten years ago. He soon built up a paying practice, receiving the aid of the late ex Gov. Fowler of that State, and other powerful politicians and business men. Later he founded the firm of which he is now the head, in company with Mr. Collin, who had been one of the faculty of an up-State law school and legal adviser to David H. Hill when the latter was governor. The firm occupies a suite of offices at No. 32 Nassau street and has a large and lucrative business. It is counsel for numerous corporations and estates, among the former being the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Railway Company, which controls the street-car transportation of Brooklyn.

When the idea that he should be a candidate for president was first broached to Judge Parker he is reported to have said that, much as he would appreciate so great an honor, he could hardly afford to give up a congenial place on the bench, with seven years to serve and a salary aggregating more than $100,000. He had serious doubts as to the ability of the Democratic party to pull itself together in time to win the presidency this year. The offer of chief place in a prosperous law firm at $50,000 a year, in case he should run for the presidency and fail of election, is believed to have had weight in his consideration of the suggestion. Judge Parker is considered one of the best equipped lawyers in the State, and Sheehan & Collin is not the only firm which would consider itself fortunate to have him as a member.

INITIATIVE AND REFERENDUM

Or Direct Legislation and Public Ownership of Utilities.

The time is coming, almost here when the people will demand the initiative and the referendum. It is, likewise, as to "public ownership of public utilities," and the party adopting platforms pledging these great reforms or parts of them, is the party that will carry the country whether the party be an old or a new one. "Direct legislation" is destined to be a most effective battle cry within a decade. More effective than "59-40 or fight" was, "Free trade and sailor's rights," "The dollar of the father," or any other mere political battle cry.

"Governmental ownership and postoffice control of cables, telegraphs, telephones and appliances" will also be a formulated demand in the minds and mouths of millions of American voters before the election of the successor to Mr. Roosevelt's successor.

Let us urge upon our leaders the adoption of platform planks deducible to their cries and we will continue to win. If they fail to do so they will fail to win within a decade. All issues heretofore raised have been fought to a standstill or to triumph, and a sideration will prove it all and unprofitable. We are a progressive party, a progressive people. Ideas come and stay and must be entertained and that party which seizes upon them and fastens and illustrates them upon the pages of our statute books is the party which is to live, which deserves to live. Let our banner be inscribed preparatory to the battle of 1908. "Direct legislation" only attainable through the initiative and referendum, public ownership of public utility attainable only through national ownership and postoffice control of cable, telegraph and telephone lines and appliances. And if our national convention of 1908 approves and makes these two battle cries possible or reasonable, our sweep is again as certain as in 1904. Then, let the cry ring out "Direct legislation!" "Public ownership of public utility" and the battle is already won.

The pledge needn't go further at that convention than telegraphs and telephones, etc., when tests of public sentiment and operation of plan may be made, and go further when practicable.

This will be derided by interested and thoughtless persons as socialism and indeed is more or less a touch of that party, but it is one of their mass of demands more or less impracticable which is believed to be wholly practicable as well as a wide stride in the direct line of the people's rights. The impracticable ideas of the socialists are what must be avoided and not the practicable ideas.

Socialism, like any other ism, is not wholly bad nor wholly folly and these two demands of that party are growing so rapidly in the public appreciation that ere long some leading party will take them up and win for a score of years.

How the Rough Rider rides!

Alton Brooks Parker's candidacy was a false alarm. Ring off!

o o o

Even a Parker club couldn't down Teddy.

o o o

West Virginia, thou hast been a tender nurse—Henry Gassaway Davis, Nov. 9.

o o o

The Democrats got out of the campaign just what they put into it—nothing.

o o o

Bryan's mouth will just go off anyhow, ever to the hurt of his party, ever to the glory of his country.

o o o

But let's not hurrah; the majority is big enough to do that.

o o o

The overwhelming Republican majority was a trite way in which the American voters had to tell Grover Cleveland to keep hands off.

o o o

Never was a public man more highly complimented in his determination to retire to private life than was Davy Benny Hill, Nov. 8.

o o o

It takes more than a fat pocket book to make a suitable candidate for Vice President. Ask Gassaway.

o o o

Hill ought to apologize to Parker for causing him to be a figure head in the campaign. Hill knew better; Parker didn't.

o o o

The country has become so used to not believing what Democrats say that when they said Roosevelt was "unsafe" they made him President.

o o o

It wasn't such a land slide either since we have to consider the fact that the land had only one way to slide.

o o o

Parker, Hill, Cleveland, Belmont, Taggart and Bryan are not the kinds of political ingredients American voters want.

o o o

Now that he has ridden rough shod over Parker and all the rest, Roosevelt has a national reputation as a Rough Rider.

o o o

Not of a section, but all the country; not of a party, but of all the people is Theodore Roosevelt President. His impetuosity is winning as well as wise. His way of doing things by simply doing them is what Americans like. In any sense his Americanism, yea, his patriotism, cannot be questioned. GOREQUILL.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

FOR SHERIFF

DUVALL.—We are authorized to announce Alonzo J. Duvall a candidate for the office of Sheriff of Crittenden county, subject to the action of the Republican party. Election 1905.

"MARION'S MENACE."

The article contained in this issue of the Record and entitled "Marion's Menace," should be read and duly considered by every person in the county, and especially in Marion. Since this mineral district was opened the one obstacle which has been in the way, which perhaps has turned capital from our doors, and the removal of which would doubtless have advanced the present development of our mineral resources two fold, is the bad transportation we are forced to offer capital on account of the condition of the county roads. In winter they are almost impassable in many places, and to think of transporting ore from the mines to the cars is beyond the question. Farmers find it oftentimes impossible to reach the market with farm products at that season of the year.

Many other counties in the State with no such valuable resources as we have, have much better roads. The roads are well bedded and drained, and pikes have been built.

Our county judge, Mr. Towery, perhaps has given more attention to our county roads the last year than had been done any year heretofore. Possibly he realizes, as our citizens are coming to do, that nothing will advance our county, the value of land and various interests so much as good roads. Let us assist the county judge, let us pull for better dirt roads, and pikes if possible. Pikes will benefit our people generally more than a branch or belt railroad taking in some of our leading mines within a small radius of Marion. In that way our farms would be cut up and damaged, the hauling from which scores of our countrymen realize an equitable income would be taken away, and the money would go to the foreign corporation that should be spent and circulated here, while with pikes the hauling season would last the year round and our mining companies would be able to work the year round with equal force and vigor. Instead, as is now the case, of doubling the force in summer that a sufficient supply of ore may be secured for winter trade. Then there is a loss in rehandling the ore at the depositories along the railroads and a loss of time at the mines where summer shafts become filled with water and damaged by neglect.

The capital that is coming here is going to agitate the question of pikes or the belt railroad. That the belt railroad would not benefit the farmer and that he would be as far from market during the season of bad roads he can readily see. Hence there should now be a sentiment created for the better roads.

COMMERCIAL CLUB FOR MARION.

Another big fire has just visited our city, devastating considerable property and endangering the homes, property and even the lives of many more of our citizens. That it was not a general conflagration was due, not to the means of protection afforded residents of Marion, but to the favorable conditions of the weather which prevailed, operating against the spread of fire. We have no fire protection worth mentioning, but it ought not require such another object lesson to bring about a movement to secure at early date both waterworks and a more adequate and modern system for extinguishing fire. After securing the waterworks, a modern fire engine and other necessary apparatus is needed, with a trained corps for its operation. The consequent lowering of the rate of premium on insurance would go a long way toward paying for these public utilities. The present rates certainly appear to be extortionate, but by circumstances are probably fully warranted.

We call attention in this connection to the movement which is now under way to organize a Commercial club, having just such public enterprises as its special mission. It is not necessary to agitate the subject at this time to insure its successful formation, as that end is as good as accomplished already. But it is a requisite to its success, after the organization shall have been effected, that the citizens of Marion give their support and cooperation in effecting the results which the Commercial Club aims to accomplish for our general good.

This move has our hearty endorsement and earnest wishes for quick and sure success in all its aims and purposes of organization. Marion is just emerging from a little country town, without special advantages or possibilities, into the first pretensions or probabilities of becoming a city, and will doubtless be both prosperous and populous in due course of time. Nothing will more surely aid in effecting a rapid transition into the full dimensions of a city, or more effectively operate to promote the improvement of public utilities, than the clubbing together of the business and professional men of our city, or any others who feel interested in the movement and disposed to aid in its advancement.

We can conceive of no reason for anyone withholding their support of a Commercial Club, which is non-partisan and non-sectarian, and can only advocate such measures as will be accepted as being for the general good of the community. Such an organization will always be within the control of our best and foremost citizens, and its affairs will therefore be conducted in the unbiased manner which is characteristic of such bodies.

We wish to call the attention of our readers to the statements contained herein which were made by "Veritas" on "Direct Legislation and Public Ownership, or Government Control of Utilities." These are issues that sooner or later will confront the American people and the chances are that they will play a prominent part in national politics. Let the Republican party, the party of progress, the party that boldly faces every issue and settles the question, weigh and consider these two questions. If they are questions of the hour, if they are practical, if they are right and times demand their adoption, let the party which holds the confidence of the American people, insert them in its platform and assert its faith therein, pledging to the American people the proper relief.

The election is over and Tim Reardon still exists.

The "Hale letter" remains fresh in the memory of the Salem people.

The greatest article ever written by the editor of the Press was the letter to Sherrod Hale.

The Press furnished to ministers of the Gospel at fifty cents a year. It would be cheap at half the price.

If Tim Reardon is a "Campaign sheet," as the Press says, it undoubtedly answered its purpose in Crittenden county.

It is after the election and we still publish the Market Reports, the Press' prohibition to the contrary notwithstanding.

On the inside of the Democrat you will find the result of the election.—Clinton Democrat.

Which Democrat?

And it came to pass that an imported hiring of the Crittenden Press spoke unto the people while they sat at meat, and the multitudes marvelled thereat.

The Democrats will have to learn to nominate men whom the voters want and not the politicians. The politicians may nominate but they can't elect.—Mayfield Messenger.

Brother, you have touched the keynote of Republican success in the late national campaign.

The official count of the votes cast for congressman in the Third district shows that Jones, Republican, is elected by a majority of 53 over Richardson, Democrat. This will give the Republicans three congressmen in Kentucky.

$6,000 FIRE!

Wallingford's Livery Stable and Dave Woods Residence Destroyed.

ONLY PARTIAL INSURANCE.

Wednesday morning a short time past midnight, the livery stable of W. D. Wallingford, the residence of Dave Woods and the marble shop of S. N. Henry 1311 frame buildings burned to the ground. The fire originated in the rear end of Wallingford's stable and spread with lightning rapidity. The breeze blowing from the south-west drove the flames into the residence of Mr. Woods.

The fire was first discovered by a couple of railroad engineers who were in the city waiting for the mid-night freight train. They aroused Ryford, who was sleeping in the office of the livery stable. In a short time a large portion of the city populace had been aroused and were on the scene. There was no chance to save the stable and residence and there was barely time to cut the halters that fastened the horses in their stalls and to carry the main part of the furniture out of the Woods residence. All of the horses belonging to Wallingford were taken out, and escaped, but three fine horses belonging to M. W. LaRue, the Hiram How & Co. timber agent, J. H. Tonkin, proprietor of coal mines in Webster county, and B. M. Vinson, the Fredonia timber man, respectively, fell victims to the flames. Not a single piece of rolling stock could be saved from the flames, and even Wallingford's new bus that he used to haul passengers to and from the depot went down.

According to the best estimates the loss is about as follows:

W. D. Wallingford, stable and contents, $2,500. Insurance $600.

D. Woods, residence and part of contents, $2,500. Insurance $1,150.

S. N. Henry, marble shop and contents, $150. No insurance.

J. H. Tonkin, horse, buggy and harness, $125. No insurance.

M. M. LaRue, horse and buggy, $250. No insurance.

B. M. Vinson, horse and buggy, $175. No insurance.

The First Presbyterian church caught on fire and also other buildings in the vicinity, but were saved by the efforts of the bucket brigade and patent fire extinguishers, together with the somewhat favorable condition of the weather. The damage to adjoining property will not be more than $200.

We are not able to say whether Messrs. Wallingford and Woods will rebuild on the lots, or whether Mr. Wallingford will continue in the livery business, but Mr. Henry informs us that he will resume his marble business as before.

Foster Threlkeld Dead.

Foster Threlkeld, another prominent citizen of Tolu, died Tuesday at 2:45 p.m. of blood poison. He was forty-seven years of age and was the son of Willis Threlkeld and Susan Foster Threlkeld, both of whom are dead. His mother was a sister of the late Col. R. W. Foster, from whom he inherited the estate on which he lived and died. Foster Threlkeld was married twice. His first wife, Anna Black, was the daughter of Judge N. R. Black formerly of this place. His second wife, who survives him, was Miss Carry Lee, of Louisiana, a relative of the noted General Rob't E. Lee of the South. This union was blessed by one child, Foster Lee Threlkeld, who is now only eight years old. The deceased is also survived by one sister, Clara, wife of I. O. Brown, of Tolu, one half sister, Mrs. Jake Parris, of Salem, and two half brothers, Dr. J. D. Threlkeld, of Salem, and Jailer Tom Threlkeld, of Southland.

The deceased was a member of the Sheridan Masonic lodge which assisted by the Marion Masons conducted the funeral services here at the new cemetery where the body was interred. He was a member of the Presbyterian church at Tolu, was a good neighbor, generous and hospitable to a fault, and other faults if he possessed any, were buried with him.

MONKEY FACED OWLS.

A Queer River Cliff Colony in Southern California.

On the banks of the Santa Ana river, in northern California, is a queer colony. It is situated in the cliffs that rise above the surface of the river and has a multitude of inhabitants. In passing along the river by daylight one would not imagine that the cliffs were inhabited, for the members of the colony are fast asleep in the chambers of the cliffs. But at dusk there is a change. At every one of the openings with which the cliffs are perforated appears a countenance so human-like in its expression that the beholder is apt to imagine that these must be the faces of the pixies and elves of whom he delighted to hear in his childhood days.

The tiny faces belong to a family having a name nearly as large as the individuals are small. It is the family of Strix pratensis, or monkey faced owl. So much do their faces resemble those of human features that they are often called the human faced owl. In the holes of the cliffs they pass their days and rear their young. At night they emerge in flocks and search the fields for mice, gophers and insects, upon which they live. This owl does not hoot as do most owls, but utters a low, chuckling whistle as it flies about in search of prey.

Partners and fruit raisers in southern California are warm friends of the bird, for it destroys many of the pests which annoy them and injure their crops. The eggs of the little owl are white, and five or six form a litter.—Los Angeles Times.

Bill Nye's Cow.

Bill Nye, the humorist, once had a cow to sell and advertised her as follows:

"Owing to my ill health I will sell at my residence, in township 10, range 18, according to the government's survey, one plump raspberry cow, aged eight years. She is of undoubted courage and gives milk frequently. To a man who does not fear death in any form she would be a great boon. She is very much attached to her present home with a stay chain, but she will be sold to any one who will agree to treat her right. She is one fourth Shorthorn and three quarters Ayres. I will also throw in a double barrel shotgun, which goes with her. In May she usually goes away for a week or two and returns with a tall red calf with wobbly legs. Her name is Rose. I would rather sell her to a nonresident."

The Hen Did Her Best.

A truthful farmer relates that he put a porcelain egg in the nest of a hen and found that the eggs she laid were of increased size. Then he put a goose egg in the nest. The hen laid an egg just as large. He was so pleased with the scheme that he put a white-washed football in the nest. When he went the next time to search for eggs he found one as big as a football, but no hen in sight. Securing the egg, he saw engraved on it by her photography these words, "I'm no ostrich, but I've done my best." Later he found the hen in side the egg.

She Gave Him the Hint.

Mother—I can't have that young man staying here so late at night. You must give him a hint of some kind. Daughter—in the evening—I am very much afraid something will happen to you on the streets at night. You must be more careful of yourself and not be out so late. If anything should happen to you I'd die. (They are engaged.)

In College Athletics Good Is Mixed With Evil

By SAMUEL J. ELDER,
Prominent Lawyer and Graduate of Yale.

ONE of the most direct benefits which a college receives from athletics is in the matter of college discipline. The control of the student body is in no way more effectively maintained than by the power of the faculty to regulate athletics. When a college class knows that in case of any exceptional outbreak its members may be debarred from all form of athletic contests for a season or a term, it keeps a strenuous supervision over its unruly members. Although a class will not "peach" on its own members and disclose who was to blame, yet it visits of its own accord upon wrong-doers a social discipline which may amount to ostracism of men who are actually to blame. Of course the instances are rare in which a sweeping penalty of this kind has been imposed, yet the knowledge that it may be, holds the student body very well in hand.

Even more salutary is the discipline of individuals, and the holding of athletes to a respectable grade of scholarship and a high grade of behavior is well nigh perfect. Most of the leading colleges rigorously insist that no one shall take part in athletic contests whose standard is not at least respectable. Yale, until within a year or two, went further than this and required 25 points higher rank for athletes than it required for graduation, and this rule was rigorously enforced. I remember several years ago when a man who was practically sure of two firsts was debarred by the faculty because of a fractional failure in rank, and was refused a reexamination.

In addition to these direct and palpable benefits, the college gains very noticeably in good behavior. Several hundred or thousand young men gathered together are quite explosive, there is an amount of surplus energy which must be worked off. In the old days it took the form of extreme hazing, violent conflicts between classes, riots with townspeople, in some instances with fatal results. All that has passed away. It is only in the smallest and most provincial institutions that hazing now amounts to anything. A legitimate channel of exercise is furnished in a great variety of sports. The necessary training and the strict adherence to rules have done more than college laws could possibly do to repress lawlessness.

Just how much the general health of the college is benefited by athletics it is difficult to say, but it is considerable. Years ago, when there were only two or three lines of sports and only a few men engaged in them who were sure of places on teams and crews, the general benefit was not widespread. At present, however, the lines of sport have so multiplied and the chance of selection on teams has so increased that a much larger proportion of the student body gets regularly into the gymnasium and into the open air than formerly, and the resultant good is all the more widespread. There is besides this the impetus to the whole student body which comes from athletic enthusiasm in the various lines.

In addition to this, the work is very much better handled than formerly, because heads of the athletic department and of the gymnasium keep a close supervision over men desirous of competing in any form of sport, and to a large extent prevent excessive or ill-advised work, and direct the lines along which men of slight physique, or defective lung capacity, muscular development, or heart action, shall go. It is rare nowadays to hear of men who have been seriously injured by college athletics.

Desire for Bigness

By DR. A. H. STEPHENS,
Pastor Cumberland Presbyterian Church, Chicago.

ment of the ambition for greatness. In our life, military and civic, we are cursed with an overwhelming desire for bigness. May God call us back from our following after this mirage that has led so many men and nations far out into the desert to perish, forgetting tenderness and looking only to the accomplishment of the ambition for greatness. In our life, military and civic, we are cursed with an overwhelming desire for bigness. May God call us back from our following after this mirage that has led so many men and nations far out into the desert to perish, simply of their own lust for big things. It is still true that the victories of peace are greater than the victories of war. We must attune our ears afresh to hear the voice of truth and tenderness, which is only too faint, because of the Niagara roar in which we live.

In the bitter competitions and deadly strifes by which society is beset we have come to emphasize power, might and magnitude, forgetting that the race is not always to the swift nor the battle to the strong. Have men come to believe that God is always on the side of the largest navies and strongest armies? Do we, like Napoleon, see as important only cavalry, infantry and artillery?

The true disciple of Christ will learn from his Master, who found in a cup of cold water a ministry, tender and sweet, to human thirst. Sad is that heart to which want and suffering make no appeal, and sadder is that life that gives out none of itself in tenderness for the benefit of its kind.

The church to fulfill her true mission to men must not allow herself to be led into the riotous assembly that thunders in the theater at Ephesus, but must rather go to the upper room in Jerusalem, where she may for a time be alone with her Lord to gain power for her ministry of tenderness.

We Marry Too Late

By REV. WM. S. KELSEY,
Associate Pastor Berkeley Temple, Boston.

a church where all classes come to be married, I am convinced that the tendency is toward marrying late in life. My observation teaches me the same lesson.

So much is regarded as necessary before one can marry nowadays that a young man dare not marry. The real young couple is the exception, yet those whom I have known to be thus married have been the most peaceful and prosperous. If married before the age of 25 they are more likely to live happily.

When young the husband and wife easily adjust themselves the one to the other. Habits are not fixed, peculiarities are not strong. It is easy to give up one's way. The burdens of life are taken up together instead of being borne alone, waiting for the day of prosperity and marriage, and a joyous, happy union is much more seen as the result.

Be Moderate in Taking Your Athletic Exercise

By ROBERT J. ROBERTS,
Director of the Boston Y. M. C. A. Gymnasium.

THERE is nothing like athletics of the body and mind to teach a man how to economize his powers. If he follows the advice of a wise trainer, the use of his powers physically can be carried on competitively in a moderate way into the 40s, while to that of the mind no man can surely set the limit.

A young man is told to rejoice in his strength and the normal young man joys in showing off his powers athletically, but with these great blessings of strength, endurance, speed, activity, skill, etc., comes the temptation to over-do. If one finds that he cannot sleep well and do good work at his studies, business or at the work bench while he trains for or engages in athletic work it will be wise for him to only exercise, but not to compete against others. The pleasant sensation that the doing an exercise correctly gives one is reward enough for doing it. The good book puts it, be temperate in all things, and the Greeks still more simply put it, nothing over much. With this nothing over much constantly before his eyes, young America may indulge in athletics with the knowledge that it will give him more joy in living and prolong his days to five times the period it took to make him a full-grown man.

Rowing and swimming, to my mind, make an almost ideal combination for moderate exercise. Dr. Meylan, once my associate in the B. Y. M. C. A. gym, wrote a paper on the value of rowing. His investigation shows that rowing as an athletic exercise tended to prolong life. Those who have rowed in the crews for the past 41 years have an expectation of five years longer life than others. Of the 152 traced 122 are now living. Not a single death was traceable to over-doing in athletics. Of the 32 dead, six were killed in war, two by accident and one died of consumption. Only two said that their health was poor. Only one confessed to dyspepsia. They say they have lived longer and felt better for the hard rowing that they did. Not one of these men made a failure of his career. On the average only 2.1 per cent. of the college graduates earn a place in "Who's Who." Of this list of rowers 8.3 per cent. have won places as representative Americans. Twenty of them are men of national and international importance.

Does athletics tend to shorten or prolong life? It tends to prolong life if taken every day in moderation, and shorten life if taken in over doses.

Ton Self-Absorbed

By MRS. FRANK LESLIE.

Women cannot tell the truth about themselves. For one reason, they do not know themselves. Their sex, their upbringing, society conventions, the restrictions of their methods of living, foster a self-absorption, which develops a second woman entirely different from the original woman. A woman sits and sews, her mind is occupied by petty details, she becomes superstitious and imagines insults and injuries where none are intended. The artistic temperament is based on the same lines. The painter studies the minutest details of his picture and his horizon becomes narrowed in consequence.

Man from his boyhood is trained for big enterprises, and his mind expands as his body develops. He learns to know himself, because he must, in his battle with the world, would he be successful. Woman's horizon is bounded by the four walls of her home, by the smallness of her womanly pursuits, and she comes to live in a dreamland, creating finally a creature of her imagination, which is far removed from the woman as God made her.

Besides, she cannot tell the truth about herself. Society would be shocked were she to disclose the impulsiveness, the good and evil passions which surge in her heart, one warring against the other.

Would the world really believe a woman who told the truth about herself? Would it not scoff and say: "You are fooling us! The woman you tell us of is not the real woman, but a woman of your imagination."

Therefore why trouble to force people to think you other than as you appear on the surface?

The real woman is cloistered in the heart of every woman, and to put one or two during a lifetime does she tell the truth about herself. When she does it is a sacred revelation of the high aspirations—the idealism which is in reality the fundamental part of every woman's nature.

A United Humanity

By JUDGE GEORGE GRAY, of Delaware.

The peoples of the world are being drawn closer together by the wonderful achievements of science and art. The estranging seas no longer separate but unite the people of the old world and the new, and a solidarity of material interests has produced something like a solidarity of thought and feeling. The belief that what was harmful or injurious to the prosperity and well being of one country might be helpful and beneficial to another, is not so prevalent as it once was. We no longer consider the advance of alien peoples in wealth and prosperity as a menace to our own. We are more prone now than formerly to recognize such advance as an increment to the world's wealth, in which all, sooner or later, must have some share, however small, that, as the waters of a great lake cannot be drawn from or depleted at its most remote corner, without sensibly affecting the general level of the great body of its waters, so the material waste and destruction and moral deterioration of a war between nations, however remote, must to some extent injuriously affect the civilized world.

The economic waste, consequent upon the maintenance of the great and increasing military and naval establishments of the world, is beginning to make its due impression upon the enlightened conscience and intelligence of increasing numbers in all countries. Altruism is no longer to be banished from national policies and national conduct, and there is growing recognition of the truth that the obligations of the moral law are imposed upon nations, as well as upon individuals.

Public opinion is no longer fenced in by national boundaries. It has o'erleaped them all, and now an international public opinion is making itself felt from one corner of Christendom to the other, and, through the instrumentality of a free press, forecasts and controls the conduct and policies of kings and cabinets.

THE SUNDAY BIBLE SCHOOL

Lesson in the International Series for November 20, 1904—"Isaiah's Message to Judah."

(Prepared by the "Highway and By-way" Preacher.)

(Copyright, 1904, by J. M. Edson.)
LESSON TEXT.—Isaiah 1:1-9, 16-20; memory verse, 18:20. Study all of the verses 1-20.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"Cease to do evil;
learn to do well."—Isaiah 1:16, 17.

TIME.—7:00 P. M.
PLACE.—Jerusalem.

Introductory Note.

The prophecy of Isaiah carries us into a period of the history of Judah somewhat later than that which we have been studying. Following the 40 years' reign of Josiah, we have Amasia's reign, 29 years, and then, the long 13-years' reign of Azariah, or "Uzziah," as in 1 Kings 15:11, and to Isaiah it was during the latter part of his reign that Isaiah began prophesying, and, as is indicated in the opening verse of his prophecy, his ministry continued through the reign of Jotham, 16 years; Ahas, 16 years, and into Hezekiah's reign of 29 years. The kings of Israel during this period were Jeroboam II, 41 years; Zacheriah, his son, six months; Shallum (usurper), one month; Menahem (usurper), ten years; Pekahiah, his son, two years; Pekah (usurper), 20 years, and Hoshea, nine years, during whose reign the kingdom of Israel came to an end. This occurred during Hezekiah's reign. For the history of the time during which Isaiah prophesied see 2 Chron. 26-32.

The Lesson Outline.

THEME.—A Message to the Wayward.
I. Introductory.—v. 1.
1. The Charge.—vs. 2-9.
(1) God Speaking.—v. 2.
(2) God the Faithful Father.—v. 3.
(3) A Rebellious People.—vs. 4-9.

(b) Sin Laden.
(c) Unresponsive to Discipline.
(d) Utterly Corrupt.
(e) Their Land Desolate.
(f) Remembrance of God's Mercy.
II. The Appeal (Salvation's Requirements).—vs. 10-15.
(1) The Cleansing from Sin.
(2) Turning from Sin.
(3) Doing Good.
(4) Promise and Threat.—vs. 16, 20.
(5) God's Hand of Mercy and Blessing.—v. 19.
(6) God's Hand of Judgment and Punishment.—v. 20.

Comparing Scripture with Scripture.

1. Introductory, v. 1.—It identifies the author, "Isaiah, the Son of Amos;" it declares the nature of what follows, "the vision;" it fixes the objective of the prophecy, "Judah and Jerusalem," and the time "in the days of Uzziah, Jotham, Ahas and Hezekiah." Here is a suggestion for preachers, teachers and class leaders, all who would give instruction out of God's Word. He clear as to the message; definite as to its objective point, and fit it to the times and needs of those to whom it is addressed.

1. The Charge. 11) God Speaking, v. 2.—The heavens and the earth are filled with the voice of God. He spoke of His ancient people, He is speaking today through His Son.—11eb. 1:1, 2.

(2) God, the Faithful Father, v. 3.—"Nourished and brought up children." The history of God's dealings with Israel is one long story of love, patience, goodness and mercy. God redeemed them from bondage, molded them into a nation, gave them a "land flowing with milk and honey," and made them a great nation under David and Solomon. This is but a picture, a type, of what God has done and is doing for every human soul. As the faithful Father, He has sent His Son to deliver from the bondage of sin (John 3:16); He has given a goodly heritage (Rom. 8:17), and He has shown the way of victory (2 Cor. 2:14).

(3) A Rebellious People, vs. 4-9.—(a) Ungrateful and Selfish—"Doth not know, doth not consider." How like people to-day in their attitude towards God (Isa. 33:6). (b) Sin Laden. Compare Rom. 1:18-32. (c) Unresponsive to Discipline—"Why should ye be stricken any more?" It is an awful thing when God has to leave a soul alone in its sin. The doom of a soul is sealed when God ceases to strive with it. Compare first part of Gen. 6:3 with Matt. 12:32. (d) Utterly Corrupt.—"The whole head is sick, and the whole heart faint." This, with verse 6, indicates the desperate moral condition of Israel. Man, in the sight of God, is a hopeless, helpless sinner (Rom. 3:10; Isa. 64:6). (e) Their Land Desolate vs. 7, 8.—Ah, how the world is suffering to-day from sin. See it all about us. And so it will continue until Jesus comes to reign supreme. (f) Remembrance of God's Mercy, v. 9.—God has no delight in the death of the wicked (Ezek. 33:11; 1 Tim. 2:4).

III. The Appeal (Salvation's Requirements). 11) Cleansing from Sin—"Wash you, make you clean." "The blood of Jesus Christ cleanseth from all sin." John 1:7. This is the first step. 12) Turning from Sin—"Turn away the evil of your doings." "Cease to do evil." This is the next step. Conversion means turning about (Rom. 6:1-2). This is the negative side of the Christian life. (3) Doing Good—"Learn to do well." Phil. 1:9-11. 2 Thess. 2:16, 17. This is the positive side of the Christian life. Learn to do well. (a) By study of God's Word—"Seek judgment." 2 Tim. 2:15; (b) By kindly ministry. Phil. 2:3-7; Jas. 1:27.

IV. Promise and Threat.

(1) God's hand of mercy and blessing outstretched to those who will yield to and obey Him. But (2) God's hand of judgment and punishment falling upon such as refuse to hear. Which shall it be? "The mouth of the Lord hath spoken it."

The Golden Text.

"Cease to do evil; learn to do well." The theory of evolution cannot stand upon this text. The natural tendency of man is downward and away from God. The two contrasts presented here are "evil" and "well" (good). The one identifies the inherent tendency and quality of man. The other describes the nature and attributes of God. The two emphatic words are "cease" and "learn." Cut loose from the natural man and his tendencies. Unite with God. This two-fold operation is realized in repentance for sin, and salvation to righteousness.

Sunday Schools, Look Here.

Last year our apportionment for county and state work was $40. We paid $47. This year our apportionment was raised to $50. We have paid $47.95 which leaves a balance due, $2.05. Mr. Fox has asked if this would be paid by January 1, 1905. What do you say? Let me suggest that every family who has not paid anything or who may want to pay something to this good work, take from their group of chickens an old fat hen that is too fat to lay an egg this winter and donate her to the Sunday school cause on the 15th day of December, 1904. If you run over it will be credited to our next year's apportionment. I have never asked you for a dollar for myself and don't expect to, but my old hen will sing with your hens on that day.

See your district president or let them see you at once.

Yours for the cause, R. M. FRANKS, Co. Pres.
